JLT COMMUNITY SERIES

Hi and welcome to the first pre-season edition of the Fantasy Freako's rave for 2017. If history is anything to go by, then we shouldn't pick, nor cross off a player based on how they have performed in the pre-season competition. Just think of Patrick Karnezis and Heritier Lumumba – both lit up the pre-season competition and both bombed miserably. In saying that, it does allow us to analyse team game plans and ball movement.

Turning our attention to the final week of JLT Community Series matches, team selections will become a lot clearer as coaches' look to settle on a side for the season opener. If you have your eye on a rookie and they aren't named this week, then it's safe to say they are not in the mix.

In this week's focus, I'll highlight the best performers so far this pre-season based on points per minute, with one growing Giant leading the way.

Enjoy this week's rave and best of luck for the 2017 season!

POINTS PER MINUTE

The pre-season competition allows clubs to put plans into practice and manage the game time of players. As this varies from one player to another, the most effective measure from a fantasy perspective is points per minute. This measures how prolific the player is based on the amount of time they spend on the ground.

Looking at all players that have played in at least two games, Josh Kelly has been the standout this pre-season, ranking No.1 in the competition with 1.59 points per minute. Across the two games he has attended 64% of all centre bounces, which is the second-highest percentage of any player at the club. With the possibility of playing more as an inside midfielder, we have already seen him improve his contested possession rate from 33% last year to 42%. In terms of his points per game, he has improved from 69 in his debut year, to 73 and 89 last season. Based on natural progression, it would be safe to say that he could nudge the three-figure mark in 2017.

Jack Steven ranks a close second behind Kelly with 1.57 points per minute. After owning him last season, I'm on board again this year, with his ability to pile on the points a major lure. Steven scored 80 points from just a half in his opening match and is as durable as they come, playing all 22 games in three of the past four seasons.

Dayne Zorko ranks third for his output with 1.52 points per minute. I'm not sure how much longer he can be ignored, applying 23 tackles across two games, six more than any other player in the league. After losing dual position status he looks to be an ideal POD this season, and a prolific one at that.

Jack Billings has caught my eye in a roaming role, ranking 17th for his output. He hasn't been used at a centre bounce and has won 33 disposals in the defensive half – ranked No.1 at the club. A breakout is seriously looming, and with popular choice Isaac Heeney ruled out through an illness, a switch to Billings has plenty of appeal.

Lastly, Toby Nankervis ranks 19th and looks set to lead the ruck brigade at the Tigers. He is thriving as the No.1 man, recording the most disposals (30) of any ruckman in the league. A DPP, he can be selected as a ruckman or forward. I'm strongly considering him as my second ruckman.

Below are the best performers so far in the JLT Community Series.

FANTASY CHOICES: PROJECTING FORWARD

There are plenty of unknowns when it comes to picking a draft based side, with potential output the biggest question mark. Does a player maintain his level of performance from the previous year, or does he drop right away? Furthermore, is there a bolter among the ranks?

In the 2017 AFL Prospectus, we looked into the crystal ball and highlighted the best options from a value point of view for the upcoming season which are outlined in the above table. It should be no surprise to anyone that Tom Rockliff is by far the best option, 9.1 value points ahead of the next best midfielder in Patrick Dangerfield. Jack Macrae is the second-most valuable choice which can be attributed to his dual position status, while Adam Treloar is the bolter, coming in fifth. Max Gawn and Todd Goldstein are the two highest ranked ruckmen.

ADELAIDE CROWS

- Curtly Hampton will be given every opportunity to succeed as a midfielder by Don Pyke. Finally fit, he ranks fourth at the club for his centre bounce involvement.
- Rory Laird has been pushed into the midfield this pre-season, ranking fifth at the club for his centre bounce involvements. He leads the club for points per minute.
- The forgotten man of Adelaide's defence, Andy Otten, looms as a Round 1 starter. At the basement price, he ranks fifth at the club for defensive half disposals.

BRISBANE LIONS

- Dayne Beams got through unscathed – collecting 24 disposals from just 64% game time against the Bulldogs. A must have!
- Jake Barrett may have played himself into the Round 1 side, but he needs to be elevated first. His defensive pressure (17 pressure acts) stood out against the Bulldogs.
- Gun draftee Hugh McCluggage has suffered an ankle injury and won't be featuring in the opening month. Make sure you replace him accordingly.

CARLTON

- Despite being a cheap cash cow, is Jarrod Pickett a wise fantasy choice? He ranks 29th at the club for points per minute.
- Billie Smedts is a strong chance to play early, but his price is a deterrent. He won 13 of 16 disposals in the defensive half against St Kilda.
- Caleb Marchbank leads the Blues for disposals in the defensive 50 and is an interesting proposition at $205k. Expect him to play in Round 1.

- Taylor Adams attended a team-high 17 centre bounces against the Dockers. As a DPP, he basically picks himself.
- Matthew Scharenberg is unlikely to play in Round 1, recording the lowest game time of any Magpies player to feature in both games.
- Jordan De Goey was rampant with the big guns missing in week 1, recording a game-high 24 centre bounce attendances to go with 22 disposals and two goals

ESSENDON

- Darcy Parish has kicked on, but his price is a major hindrance. He leads the club for disposals, uncontested possessions and handball-receives.
- Brent Stanton won 18 of 21 disposals in the defensive half in his only match. A role in defence has been mentioned which boosts his initial fantasy worth.
- Brendon Goddard is another player that looks set to play behind the ball, recording only two disposals inside 50 after two games.

FREMANTLE

- Despite his proneness to injury, Aaron Sandilands has put his hand up for selection. He won 20 hitouts from 33 ruck contests against Collingwood.
- Job security aside, Cam McCarthy isn't an inspiring fantasy choice. At $211k he fits the cash cow criteria; however, he ranks 23rd at the club for points per minute.
- Stephen Hill scored 36 more points than any other player on the ground against Collingwood. He attended 19 centre bounces, ranked third for the Dockers. A unique option.

GEELONG CATS

- A switch of ends for Harry Taylor could see Tom Stewart feature in defence. Surprisingly, Stewart has only won five disposals in the defensive 50, preferring to push up the ground.
- Zach Tuohy has slotted in nicely in defence, and he has been dominant – recording 11 more disposals than any other Cats player. A solid choice.
- Zach Guthrie could be a Round 1 bolter if he earns promotion to the senior list. He hasn't looked out of place, ranking 11th at the club for points per minute.

GOLD COAST SUNS

- David Swallow has been kept away from the heat, attending just three centre bounces across two games. He ranks equal-third at the club for forward half disposals.
- Touk Miller stormed home last season and he has shone to date, leading the Suns for tackles and ranking second for disposals and contested possessions.
- Will Brodie attended a team-high 17 centre bounces against Essendon and kicked two goals. He's firming for Round 1 debut

GWS GIANTS

- Tim Taranto has put his best foot forward for a Round 1 debut. He applied an equal team-high six tackles against the Swans and hit the scoreboard.
- Toby Greene looks set for another big year. He won a game-high seven disposals inside 50 against the Swans, but was off target with two behinds.
- Heath Shaw is close to a lock. He won 68 of 83 points in the defensive half against the Swans, finishing with a team-high 10 handball-receives.

HAWTHORN

- Jaeger O'Meara has ramped up his game time. He ranks equal No.1 at the club for centre bounce attendances with 27 and is a must have!
- Jarryd Roughead ranks No.1 at the club for disposals and looks set to continue sharing his time between the forward-line and midfield – attending the fourth-most centre bounces (17) of any non-ruckman at the Hawks.
- Ryan Burton leads the club for inside 50 targets and disposals in that zone. On the pricey side, he looks set for a role in attack, with James Sicily continuing in defence.

MELBOURNE

- Bernie Vince has relished his role in defence, ranking No.1 at the club for disposals in the defensive 50 with 23. He also leads the AFL for kick-ins.
- Christian Petracca has been involved in more scores (19) than any other Demons player. A breakout is on the cards.
- Christian Salem has attended 64% of centre bounces, which is the highest percentage at the club. A permanent midfield role a strong possibility.

NORTH MELBOURNE

- Braydon Preuss could dent the fantasy worth of Todd Goldstein if he forces his way into the side. Preuss' hitout win rate of 61% is the second-highest of any ruckman in the AFL.
- Mitchell Hibberd won a team-high 16 disposals in the defensive half against the Hawks to finish with 25. He also recorded a team-high 14 handball-receives.
- Ed Vickers-Willis looks set to fill the void left by the retiring Michael Firrito – winning nine of 13 disposals in the defensive 50 against Hawthorn.

PORT ADELAIDE

- Patrick Ryder has been less than inspiring after two games, despite playing only 54% of games. In the ruck, his hitout win rate ranks 10th overall.
- Sam Powell-Pepper has shown enough to earn a Round 1 debut. He ranks equal first at the club for tackles with 12.
- Joseph Atley is another player that could debut in the season opener. He attended seven centre bounces against the Tigers and kicked one goal

RICHMOND

- Brandon Ellis is a strong chance to earn DPP status early on. He leads the club for disposals in the defensive 50 with 18.
- Dan Butler has done enough to play in the season opener. He ranks third at the club for forward half pressure acts per game and is a strong bench option.
- Josh Caddy looks set to share his time between attack and midfield, ranking fifth at the club for his centre bounce involvement.

ST KILDA

- Only Jack Steven ranks higher for points per minute than new recruit Jack Steele. Steele ranks equal-second at the club for his centre bounce involvement.
- Nick Riewoldt will continue playing off a wing this season, recording only one disposal inside 50 in his only match.
- If you have Leigh Montagna in your side, then I suggest you replace him immediately. He won't play during the JLT Community Series and may even be under a cloud for Round 1.

SYDNEY SWANS

- Jake Lloyd looms as a viable pick as a DPP. With kick-ins in his bag, he ranks second at the club for defensive half disposals.
- All indications are that Callum Mills' numbers will spike considerably this season. He ranks equal-third in the AFL for disposals in the defensive 50.
- Darcy Cameron could be a shock Round 1 selection after impressing this pre-season. As a ruckman, he has struggled, but he does rank fifth for disposals among all ruckmen.

WEST COAST EAGLES

- After attending the most centre bounces of any Eagles player in week one, Jack Redden wasn't used until the third term against the Hawks. Job security is questionable.
- Sam Mitchell led the way against the Dockers with 28 disposals and 19 handball-receives. He played as a centre bounce midfielder (13 attendances).
- Luke Shuey looks the ideal POD – attending the second-most centre bounces (15) behind Matt Priddis against the Hawks, collecting 27 disposals and 107 points

WESTERN BULLDOGS

- Luke Dahlhaus was rampant with a team-high 27 disposals in his opening match. He also attended an equal game-high 19 centre bounces.
- Tim English was handsomely beaten in the ruck against the Lions, however, he did plenty around the ground and won 15 disposals. A definite bench option.
- Lachie Hunter ranks equal 10th at the club for points per minute but don't let that deter you. He's the most expensive Bulldog for a reason.
